8TH ARMY TAKES AXIS PORT OF SFAX

RAF BOMBERS HIT DUISBURG IN 58TH RAID

Eight Planes Fail To Return From Night Attack on Ruhr Valley.

By The Associated Press

LONDON, April 10—Duisburg and other industrial points in Germany's Ruhr valley were the target of royal air force explosive and incendiary bombs as the night bombers continued its day-and-night offensive in another raid last night, the air ministry announced today.

Eight bombers failed to return from the raid, the third night raid this month against Germany, the air ministry said.

Enemy shipping off the Norwegian coast also was attacked during the night by coastal command aircraft, which torpedoed one tanker. Two coastal command planes are missing, it was announced.

58th Raid On Duisburg

It was the 58th raid of the war on Duisburg, large inland port which last was blitzed on the night of March 26. About 12 miles west of Essen, it has many important war factories, and is one of the biggest railway junctions in the Ruhr.

The RAF's new round-the-clock bombing of the continent was resumed Thursday night with a heavy raid on the Ruhr area, but the objectives that night were not announced.

Four Focke-Wulf 190's were shot down and several others severely damaged by Spitfires and Typhoons on offensive patrols in the Cap Gris Nez area of the French coast shortly before dusk yesterday, the air ministry news service said.

All of the allied fighters returned safely.

In daylight yesterday RAF Spitfire planes machinegunned supply trains in northern France, and at dusk swift Mosquito bombers attacked industrial objectives near Cologné.

Four Other Planes Down

Four enemy fighters also were shot down over the Dover Strait.

A number of casualties and some damage were caused by four German planes which bombed and machine-gunned a town on England's southwest coast at dusk yesterday, it was announced.

(The Swiss newspaper, Gazette De Lausanne, quoted a high official of the French railroads as saying that the French railway system is being steadily paralyzed by the allied air raids and by saboteurs.

(The newspaper also said British planes frequently had landed in France to fly out youths eager to join the allied fighting forces.)

MORROW CO. SOLDIER WINS FLYING CROSS

Gets Award for Destroying German Plane.

Special to The Star

EDISON, April 10—Staff Sgt. Charles Geyer, son of Mrs. Theodore Keon of Edison, has been awarded the distinguished flying cross in North Africa, according to announcement made by the war department. The award was made for destruction of a Messerschmidt 109 on Jan. 22. He is a bombardier in the Army air corps.

Sgt. Geyer was graduated from Edison High school and attended Ohio college in Columbus. At the time of his induction in December, 1941 he was living in Marion with his grandmother, Mrs. John Stamm, and was employed in a restaurant there. Before living in Edison he made his home with Mr. and Mrs. Ed Wingert.

Sgt. Geyer has been in North Africa since October, 1942 and in May it was reported that he and other members of a crew of flying fortresses, in parachuting to the ground after their plane had been hit, had been mistaken for German paratroopers. His brother, Pvt. Allen Geyer, is with the medical corps in North Africa. In a letter received two weeks ago by his mother, Sgt. Geyer stated that he was trying to locate his brother.

BLOC TO BACK FARM PRICES

Agriculture Leaders in Congress Pledge Support of President's Order.

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, April 10—Keeping their powder dry, congressional farm leaders pledged their support today to President Roosevelt's effort to hold the line against inflation with a virtual freeze of prices, wages and salaries at their existing levels.

But from farm organization leaders came outspoken criticisms of the edict, with one terming it "impossible of execution."

Senator Bankhead (D-Ala) told reporters he intended to support the President's latest executive order in good faith "so long as everybody is treated alike."

But there are indications any break-through on the wage front is likely to be followed by a revival of demands for the enactment of legislation, such as the Pace bill to include farm labor costs in parity calculations and thus boost farm prices.

Farm Leaders Object

And from leaders of four major national farm organizations came open expressions of displeasure at the President's order.

Albert S. Goss, National Grange master, said "the President's plan is based on the false assumption that we can maintain our existing standards of living in the face of enormous losses caused by war," and Edward A. O'Neal, president of the American Farm Bureau Federation, said he was "dumbfounded" by the order. He asserted farm prices were not responsible for inflation, and added "it looks like the President is hitting at the farmer."

Ezra T. Benson, executive secretary of the national council of farmer cooperatives, termed it "a play to build up a position from which John L. Lewis can successfully be opposed. It is more important to get food production."

Says Execution Impossible

And Charles W. Holman, executive secretary of the National Cooperative Milk Producers Federation, stated flatly "the President's edict is impossible of execution. Basic conditions make it necessary that agricultural prices rise to somewhat higher levels if production is to be kept up."

Bankhead, however, said he had no intention at this time of moving to bring back before the senate his vetoed bill to force price control officials to disregard government benefit payments in establishing agricultural price ceilings. The measure was referred to the agriculture committee after a bitter fight in which farm bloc members staved off administration efforts to kill the bill outright by senate support of the veto.

"I am not going to make any immediate move to bring the bill out," Bankhead said. "I intend to support the President's stabilization order in the hope that no further action will be necessary."

Dwelling Conversion Plan Is Increased

By The Associated Press

CLEVELAND, April 10—Priorities have been made available for construction of 75 more family dwelling units in the Lima, O., area through privately financed conversion, the national housing agency announced today.

William K. Divers, regional NHA representative, said priorities for 204 such units had been obtained earlier, in addition to 115 publicly-financed projects. The new priorities, Divers added, will enable owners interested in making additional facilities available through conversion activity to proceed with their plans.

ALLIED PLANES POUR CANNON FIRE INTO JAPS

Nine Enemy Bases Attacked in Pacific Area North of Australia.

By The Associated Press

Allied warplanes poured 63,000 rounds of cannon and machine-gun fire into Japanese positions in northern New Guinea and blasted nine enemy bases in the islands above Australia, Gen. Douglas MacArthur's headquarters announced today.

The heaviest assault fell upon the Madang area, along the Japanese supply route to their base at Salamaua and Lae, and dispatches said the raiders left big fires raging and that a single fighter group made 27 strafing passes over the region.

Other targets included points of increasing Japanese activity as the enemy tightened his grip on the South Seas area.

Burma Front

On the Burma front, British headquarters announced that there was "nothing to report" in fighting north of the Mayu peninsula, where the Japanese have been driving toward the Burma-India frontier.

By contrast, imperial Tokyo headquarters asserted that Japanese troops had encircled British-Indian forces at the frontier and that the group was being "annihilated."

In the skies, the British command said, RAF bombers pounded Japanese shipping and highway traffic in a series of raids over southern Burma and attacked Japanese-occupied villages on the Mayu peninsula along the Bay of Bengal.

Attack In China

Meanwhile, American P-40's shot up Japanese-held Fort Bayard in Kwangchowan territory, on the South China coast, streaming 10,000 rounds of heavy caliber machine-gun bullets into the Japanese commander's headquarters, warehouses, airdrome, radio station and ground troops.

In the Solomons, the navy acknowledged the loss of a destroyer and three other vessels in a mid-week Japanese air raid on shipping off Guadalcanal — and thus countered Tokyo's claim that 15 allied warships and transports were sunk or damaged. The navy said 34 of 99 Japanese planes in the attack were shot down.

BOARD INSTRUCTED TO DROP CLASS 3-B

First Definite Word of New Plan Comes from Georgia.

By The Associated Press

ATLANTA, April 10—Georgia selective service boards have been instructed to drop classification 3-B next Monday, Col. James N. Keelin Jr., state director, said today.

This classification has embraced men with dependents who were working in jobs essential to the war effort. Keelin disclosed the impending elimination of 3-B after returning from Washington where he consulted selective service officials.

Reports that 3-B would be dropped had come earlier this week, from Philadelphia and Washington, but none quoting draft officials.

Colonel Keelin said class 3-D would be added for deferment of men with dependents whose drafting would work a hardship on the dependents.

New regulations becoming effective this month and next also will give local boards closer control over the occupations of men of 38 to 45, and those in 4-F, he continued.

"Boards will be given more control over the work of men in this group, including those who were discharged when they passed their 38th birthday," he asserted.

"This group still is subject to military service under the law but the war department has ordered a suspension of their induction. Many of them are now engaged in work not at all essential to the war effort and they will be given an opportunity to switch over to some more important occupation.

"If they do not take advantage of this opportunity, selective service officials may prevail upon the war department to waive the age restriction and call them back into service."

RESTRICTIONS REMOVED

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, April 10—The agriculture department removed restrictions today on sale of milk in less than quarts for consumption in schools, factories, offices, playgrounds and similar places.

Crestline, Shelby Men Face Blackout Charges

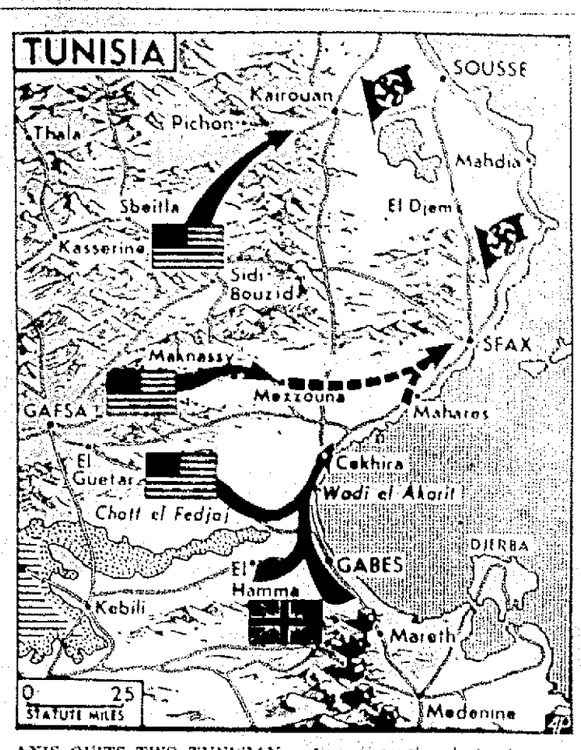
By The Associated Press

SHELBY, O., April 10—Ralph Riley pleaded guilty before Mayor W. B. Morris today to a charge of refusing to turn out lights in his home during Thursday night's blackout. Mayor Morris sentenced him to six months in jail, and then suspended the term so Riley could enlist in the armed services. Clarence Burdett of near Crestline was fined $25 for refusing to obey traffic regulations during the blackout.

MARION NURSE ABROAD SEES HOMETOWN SCENE

Seeing a familiar spot in your own home town while watching the movies in London is something of a thrill if you ask Lt. June Swope of the U. S. Army Nursing Corps, now stationed somewhere in England. The familiar spot was the rock garden at the home of Earl R. Johnson of 195 Hane avenue, seen in a motion picture "short" in a London theater by Lt. Swope and a group of Army nurses who were spending their week-end leave at the Red Cross club in London.

Mr. Johnson has had reports of the picture being shown in a number of places but this is the first time he has heard of it being seen in an European country. Recently he received a V-letter from a soldier stationed in Honolulu saying he had seen it in that city. Lt. Swope is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bert E. Swope of 291 Marion avenue.



AXIS QUITS TWO TUNISIAN TOWNS. Axis forces (broken arrows) abandoned Maharas and Mezzouna in central Tunisia as allied land and air forces continued to hammer them hard. Black arrows indicate allied drives pointed at Sfax which the Algiers radio today reported captured.

President Signs Bill To Raise Postal Pay

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, April 10—The postman was entitled today to a million-dollar smile—or at least a $300 grin.

President Roosevelt signed a bill yesterday granting an average $300 a year increase for postal employes, effective until June 30, 1945. Full time employes are to get a flat $25 a month more.

War Board Bans Coffee Deliveries To Ohio Grocer

By The Associated Press

CLEVELAND, April 10—The regional war production board today prohibited George L. Oles, colorful Youngstown grocer, from accepting any coffee deliveries for the next three months.

The WPB announced the 71-year-old former Youngstown mayor was being penalized for accepting from last July through October 1,300 pounds of coffee in excess of his rationed quota.

Another government agency, the regional office of price administration, has filed ceiling price violation charges which give Emerich B. Freed, federal district judge now weighing the case, power to suspend Oles' grocery license for one year.

Oles conceded at an April 5 federal court hearing here that he had violated OPA ceilings, and his attorney, Robert J. Nicholson asked Judge Freed, who reserved decision, to be lenient.

Oles' newspaper advertisements frequently tickle his customers' sense of humor. In one, written during the coffee shortage, he declared "with all the money that George L. Oles is supposed to have, including $500,000 that I can borrow provided that I have government security, I cannot buy coffee for my customers. I have two strong policemen watching my safe. I have two more good strong policemen watching the two policemen that are watching my safe."

FREIGHT CAR CATCHES FIRE IN ERIE YARDS

Loss Placed at $1,500; Part of Shipment Saved.

A railroad freight car of miscellaneous merchandise caught fire in the Erie railroad yards here yesterday, causing loss estimated at $1,500.

The car was loaded with a variety of merchandise including sweaters, dresses and pocketbooks. The fire was discovered about 30 minutes after the car arrived at the yards, and it was quickly moved to a point near the Kenton avenue crossing where it was easily accessible to city firemen.

Men from the West Side station fought the fire and saved approximately half of the car and its contents. They were called at 1:15 p. m.

The car was loaded in New York yesterday and was bound for Chicago.

Sub Sinks U. S. Ship Off Key West, Florida

By The Associated Press

KEY WEST, Fla., April 10—The first submarine attack in months in waters off the eastern coast of the United States sank a United States merchantman early in April with a loss of 40 lives.

True to the tradition of the sea, Capt. James W. Harrel of Houston, Tex., elected to go down with his flaming ship after ordering his men to jump for safety. All the ship's officers and nine enlisted men of the Navy gun crew are among those missing.

The unescorted vessel was struck, without warning, about 3 a. m. A few moments later another torpedo blasted the engine room, and the ship burst into flames and sank, stern first, in about three minutes.

Captain Harrel, who had received a leg injury before the ship left port, limped to the only lifeboat not aflame and directed the launching, only to see the craft capsize because the ropes fouled.

"Jump for it, lads," he ordered, as the vessel settled rapidly.

Then, limping no longer, Harrel walked straight to his cabin. The door closed behind him, and he was seen no more.

ROMMEL FLEES TOWARD TUNIS IN NEAR ROUT

Americans and French Press Flank Attack While Planes Batter Fleeing Columns.

By The Associated Press

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA, April 10—Gen. Sir Bernard L. Montgomery's Eighth army occupied Sfax, third largest axis-held Tunisian city and port, in a lightning pursuit of the African corps today, crushing opposition and continuing its northward chase up the coast.

Marshal Erwin Rommel, strongly posting his armor in the mountain passes to hold off side-door attacks by British, Americans and French appeared headed for a surrender of all central Tunisia and a new defense line on a ridge in the Enfidaville area only 40 miles south of Tunis.

The British pursuit was being pressed by four divisions, plus armor.

Heavy allied bombers worked in close harmony with naval aircraft in pounding the lines of retreating forces, already badly mauled.

(A Moroccо radio broadcast, recorded in London, said planes from aircraft carriers were bombing the coastal road.)

Hurling themselves forward with crushing speed, the veterans of Gen. Sir Bernard L. Montgomery gained about 40 miles in 24 hours, occupying Maharas, 50 miles north of Gabes, and continuing on today to Sfax, where they were about 150 miles south of Tunis.

Press Flank Attacks

At the same time British, American and French on Rommel's flank, launched successful new attacks in the central and northern sectors.

Today's communique from Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower's headquarters said the British first army again had advanced, and had marked up a 10-mile gain in the last four days in the Medjez-El-Beb area.

Americans of Lieut. Gen. George S. Patton, Jr., and French combined to capture high ground north and south of Fondouk, occupying Pichon, north of Fondouk, and cleaning out that area 80 miles northwest of Sfax, where a new threat to Rommel's rear guard appeared to be shaping up.

While the Rommel withdrawal still was too methodical to be called a rout, the speed with which the axis forces were retreating made it nearly so.

The Eighth army's vehicles were rushing ahead so fast that, for the first time, Rommel's sappers had little or no time to plant mines to delay the pursuit.

Today's communique, announcing the occupation of Maharas, said British advance elements still were fighting the axis rearguard of infantry and tanks, however.

Another Dunkerque

Montgomery spurred his men on with a ringing message asking them to push on to "a first class Dunkerque" for the Germans on the Tunisian beaches.

Rommel's main effort appeared to be to get northward without being cut off, and as day dawned yesterday much enemy transport was in vulnerable position.

One enormous column of motor transports, moving bumper to bumper, was caught by Hurricane bombers as it was moving over a ridge 40 miles south of Tunis in the Enfidaville area.

Only two enemy fighters were encountered yesterday during allied air patrols in the central and northern sectors, and the German air force appeared to have suffered a defeat worse than that of the axis ground forces.

The most ignominous performance of the once-daring German air force occurred over a central sector, however, where a formation of 16 Stuka dive-bombers was encountered by American Spitfires.

Ten of the Stuka crew members bailed out, some of them even before a shot was fired. Eight of the planes were shot down and four others were damaged.

Air Forces on Job

The allied air forces carried out offensive sweeps and patrols along the entire front yesterday, it said, smashing in particular at a concentration of troops and vehicles about midway between Sousse and Tunis in the Enfidaville area.

In one air battle in the central sector Spitfires attacked a formation of 16 German dive bombers and shot down eight of them.

The communique said six allied

Compulsory Savings Plan Urged To Check Inflation

Proposal Bobs Up Again as One Way To Carry Out President's Price Control Program.

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, April 10—Compulsory savings by the public and rolled back food prices bobbed up today as possible cogs in the government's machinery for carrying out President Roosevelt's new and drastic anti-inflation edict.

Against this however was stacked the contradictory assertion of farm organizations that prices to the grower instead must be increased to stimulate production.

As the capital felt the full effect of the executive's declaration that the nation must spend less and save more to halt a ballooning economy, speculation on the inflation topic fanned out into these timidly advanced and highly speculative ideas:

1—Treasury circles, mindful that some of this agency's officials have long believed taxation alone was unable to siphon off an estimated $16,000,000,000 excess income, renewed guesswork on whether the administration plans to recommend to congress a compulsory lending or savings tax.

2—Other high government circles dropped a few hints poultry, egg and fresh vegetable prices might be among the first to be cut by OPA if this tack is followed in the fight against inflation. They said it was likely that these prices would be rolled back all the way from the retail grocer to the farm, and what's more, it was suggested privately that along with that program the price of live hogs would be cut.

A plea for higher corn prices, despite the freeze, came from Senator Aiken (R-Vt.) and at the same time it was reported in administrative circles that something like this might be accorded to step up sales of feed for livestock.

The President may hear some informal views of congressmen on the subject tonight when 54 sophemore members are invited to the White House for the same sort of get-together as 117 freshmen members enjoyed a month ago.

Tax Problem Overshadowed

The topic of inflation temporarily overshadowed the tax problems before congress through the house was embroiled in a behind-the-scenes scrap over pay-as-you-go collections again. Republicans threatened to balk a proposed two-weeks Easter vacation unless they get a chance to vote on the Ruml plan once

FARMERS AFFECTED BY OPA POULTRY CEILING

Attorney Cites Regulation Governing Farm-to-Consumer Sales.

By The Associated Press

CLEVELAND, April 10—Farmers are not permitted to sell poultry to consumers without observing retail ceiling prices, the OPA'S regional attorney James C. Gruener said today.

Noting there was confusion on this point, Gruener said maximum price Regulation 269, effective several months ago, specifically prohibited farmers from charging above-ceiling prices for poultry disposed of direct to consumers, and that a specific pricing provision governs the charges.

Except for this and some other products specifically covered by such rules, Gruener said, farmers whose total sales of all products to all sources did not exceed $75 the preceding month may disregard price ceilings in the current month. However, anytime a current month's total sales jump above $75, the farmer must observe price ceilings the next month, the OPA official added.

PRINCETON, N. J., April 10—[illegible] has never been a war [illegible] without prostitution [illegible] camps, with its attendant disease, but civil [illegible] leaders have never [illegible] whether the proper [illegible] dealing with the problem [illegible] to eliminate prostitution [illegible] or to simply try to [illegible]

[illegible]om is of growing importance [illegible] this country builds up [illegible] army in its history, [illegible]ce as large as that of [illegible]

[illegible]pinion is only one factor [illegible] control and regulation [illegible]tion in the Army, but [illegible] important factor since [illegible] so many millions of [illegible] who have members of [illegible] the armed services [illegible]

[illegible]ce public does not consti[illegible]tution, the majority is [illegible] think that strict regu[illegible] a better approach than [illegible]rump it out by police [illegible] The feeling is rather [illegible] that the age-old practice [illegible] entirely eliminated and [illegible]efore the best that can [illegible] to rely on regulation. [illegible]ling has increased in the [illegible] months.

[illegible]itary authorities come to [illegible]clusion that regulation is [illegible]ssible, and that eradication [illegible] of venereal disease in the army [illegible]s no complete repression of [illegible]tion around army camps, [illegible] the public must be educated [illegible] on this point.

The public attitude today is revealed in a survey by the Institute on the following question:

"In order to control the spread of venereal diseases around army camps, which of these plans do you favor?

A. Require all prostitutes to take a regular weekly medical examination and quarantine those who are diseased.

B. Rely upon continuous police action to get rid of all prostitutes around army camps."

The vote is:

Require weekly examinations	61%
Use police action	29
Undecided	10

If the vote is confined to those with definite opinions on the subject, the result is 68 per cent in favor of the first alternative—regulation—and 32 per cent in favor of the second.

Last November a survey was conducted by the Institute on a closely similar question.

It found that among those with opinions on the subject 55 per cent favored regulation and 45 per cent favored police clean-ups.

In other words, the trend of sentiment in the past few months has been toward regulation rather than toward police action.

Isaly's DAIRY SPECIALISTS

TO FEEL PRICE CUT ALL ALONG LINE

Poultry, Eggs and Vegetables Affected First.

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, April 10—High government circles hinted today poultry, eggs and fresh vegetable prices might be among the first to be cut by the office of price administration in carrying out President Roosevelt's order to hold or cut the cost of living.

These commodities, usually well-informed officials said, were likely to be "rolled back" at all price points from the farm to the retail grocery store. However, no official confirmation of such action was obtainable from OPA.

From the standpoint of the nation's basic markets, what loomed as a more important development was vouched for in high but unquotable quarters—a plan to force down the price of live hogs from current levels near $16 per hundredweight to about $14.50. This plan, which would not affect retail meat prices but would be intended to safeguard retail pork cuts from potential future increases, was said to bear the joint indorsement of Food Administrator Chester C. Davis and OPA Administrator Prentiss M. Brown. They were expected to issue a joint statement today, either announcing such action or warning it would be taken unless hog prices come down of their own accord. Also slated were companion moves to boost government "support prices" for hogs—now $13.25 per hundredweight—so as to reassure producers against further price cuts; to increase prices for corn to stimulate sales of feed for livestock; and to seek a 15 per cent increase in the fall crop of pigs.

Developments on other phases of the President's "hold the line against inflation" order were slower. The war manpower commission hinted lack of funds—thrice-denied by congress—to do much about new powers to keep workers from switching jobs in search of higher pay. John L. Lewis maintained his demand for a $2 per day boost in miner wages on the theory that mine wages fitted th "substandard" exception made by Mr. Roosevelt to his ban on wage raises. No legislative hurry was noted to bring forth specific tax or savings programs.

FRENCH CORVETTE SINKS TWO U-BOATS

Battle Also Brings Loss of British Destroyer.

By The Associated Press

LONDON, April 10 — Two enemy submarines were sunk last month by the Fighting French corvette Aconit in an Atlantic convoy battle in which the relatively new British destroyer Harvester was lost, the admiralty announced today.

Near midnight, the 1,210-ton Harvester located a U-boat and brought her to the surface with depth charges and then rammed her, the admiralty said. The submarine became jammed under the Harvester's stern and remained fast for several minutes before breaking clear.

The Corvette sighted the U-boat on the surface and engaged her with gunfire and finally rammed her amidships, sinking the raider immediately, the communique reported.

The Harvester's damage was such that she could proceed only at very slow speed, but the commander, A. A. Tait, ordered the corvette to return to the convoy, which still was in danger of attack.

Later, the admiralty said, the Harvester was forced to stop and was torpedoed and sunk while being towed.

The Aconit and a navy warship then destroyed a rescue ship and spotted another U-boat on the surface.

Again the corvette depth charged, and finally rammed the sub and sunk her.

Her entire survivors and the satisfaction of seeing the second submarine go to the bottom. The Harvester was laid down in 1939.

Check on Insurance for Share-Ride Cars

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O., April 10 — A state supreme court decision holding that owners of share-the-ride automobiles may be liable in event of injury to passengers who pay directly or indirectly for the transportation has sent insurance executives into emergency conference, a Columbus insurance man said today.

One point immediately raised, said John G. Fee Jr., is whether companies may obtain blanket insurance protecting workers who voluntarily have shared their cars with other employes.

The court ruled Wednesday that persons paying for the privilege of riding may claim injury damages, but that non-contributing passengers cannot because they are guests of the operator. Share-the-riders commonly contribute to the operation of the vehicle serving term, frequently through gasoline purchases.

"It has been the contention of companies and share-the-ride automobile owners," Case said, "that persons who accompany them are guests."

Columbus Plane Plant Turns Out 500 Craft

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O., April — J. P. Davey, general manager of the Curtiss-Wright warplane plant here, said yesterday the Columbus factory had delivered more than 500 combat planes in the last year to the U. S. navy and the British royal navy.

First flight of a Columbus-built Curtiss plane took place March 4, 1942, and since then the construction and delivery mark has passed the 500 figure, Davey declared.

The plant produces Curtiss Helldiver dive bombers, and Curtiss Seagull scout-observation planes. Davey said the plant was manned almost entirely by personnel new to aircraft industry.

JENKINS HEADS G.O.P. FOOD INVESTIGATORS

Republican Congressmen Will Survey Situation.

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, April 9 — A special Republican committee headed by Rep. Thomas A. Jenkins of Ironton may broaden its scope to formulate a party policy on the problem of food for war.

The primary purpose of the committee of house Republicans is to help make sure the country has ample supplies for the duration and afterwards, but some members said a party program also would be evolved if possible.

From the hills of southeastern Ohio where food is a basic problem in peace as in war, Jenkins was chosen as chairman by minority leader Joe Martin who named the committee to study the question and attempt to find the answer.

The hard-working Jenkins, just finished with months of work on taxes with the ways and means committee, is a student of marketing and distribution, and has been studying current problems on his own. During a recent trip to New York, he consulted with former President Herbert Hoover who, he said, is taking an intense interest in the current food situation.

Jenkins said he intended to really work at his new job, which he said he knew would be tough. The food committee, being unofficial, lacks power of subpoena but the chairman expects to get the advice and counsel of many experts—among them Hoover.

Jenkins emphasized his committee would not waste time grumbling about food shortages and rationing. The committee will go into every phase of the problem and make its findings and recommendations available for what they are worth to the war agencies.

"It will be the purpose of the special committee," he said, "to study the food situation with the hope of being able to offer constructive suggestions for the solution of the most important problem before the American people next to the actual naval and military activities of our armed forces."

His first action as chairman was to break the committee down into nine subcommittees charged with studying every phase of the food problem. These subcommittees will deal with production and marketing of grain and seeds, dairy products and poultry and livestock, lend-lease foods and government purchases, farm labor and farm machinery, and fresh and processed fruits and vegetables. Rep. P. W. Griffiths, Republican of Marietta, O., was named to the latter two subcommittees.

The committee, Jenkins said, will make periodic reports to the public and to government officials.

"Our primary objective," he said, "is to help in assuring adequate supplies in order to foster the country's common purpose—swift victory. Food will win the war. Food will strengthen the peace."

Spinal Meningitis Cases Show Increase in U. S.

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, April 9—Spinal meningitis, once highly fatal, but now largely curable with sulfa drugs, is rising in the United States.

Cases this year, the public health service reports, totalled 5,826 to April 3, a three-month period, against 953 for the like period last year, and 3,774 for the entire year of 1942.

The previous high for the United States, since 1912 when the records began, was 10,551 cases in 1929.

No special reasons for this year's increase have been noted. Like the common cold, spinal meningitis is spread from person to person. Crowded conditions help it to spread. Prompt diagnosis and isolation of patients control the spread.

Bricker Declares Lid on Extra Spending

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, April 10 — Gov. Bricker yesterday answered the legislature's refusal to repeal the sales tax on restaurant food and prescription medicine by declaring he would veto any legislation seeking to spend any of the revenues from that source other than for post-war needs.

Though conceding the legislature was exercising it prerogatives by refusing to follow his recommendation for repeal of the tax, the governor said he still believes the tax should be removed.

"This would spread the benefit to more people than any other tax reduction, and consistently exempt all food," the executive said in a formal statement.

"In my judgment a tax reduction would give encouragement to the people. They would know that some public officials are interested in the taxpayers as well as the tax spenders."

One Marion resident and a Delaware organization have contributed toward the support of children of the United Nations in Great Britain through the Foster Parents' plan for war children for the the month of March, according to a communication from Mrs. Edna Blue, executive chairman, of New York City.

At present the plan is operating 41 children's projects in England and is caring for children of other countries.

On receipt of an application, the foster parent receives, as soon as possible, a photograph and brief history of the child and pays $15 per month for the support of the child. More than 20,000 children of the United Nations have been helped by the Foster Parent's plan since its inception, six years ago, the chairman reported.

Gas Source in Future Declared To Be Coal

By The Associated Press

PITTSBURGH, April 10—R. C. Tucker, assistant state geologist of West Virginia, declared today practically all of the nation's future gasoline and oil supply would have to come from coal and asserted "the gas companies may have to go into the coal business whether they like it or not."

Speaking at the annual meeting of the American Petroleum Institute's eastern district, division of production, he predicted that bottled gas might even be necessary for domestic purposes, and added:

"But we aren't likely to have to stop using gasoline and oil, for we have reserves of coal which will last several hundred years." He suggested, however, that "we will have to pay much more for these products when that time arrives."

"Because of absenteeism of all kinds, a substantial portion of which is certainly preventable, tons of coal are unmined and tons of other essential materials are not made available. In consequence, planes fail to fly, ships to sail, and guns to fire."

IT'S TRUE — "That makes sense to me, Joe. Those things cost plenty of dough. After all, one dime out of every buck is a darn cheap price to pay for freedom!"

THEY SAY — "We're not really paying that money to the Government, either. It's just a loan to Uncle Sam, as I see it."

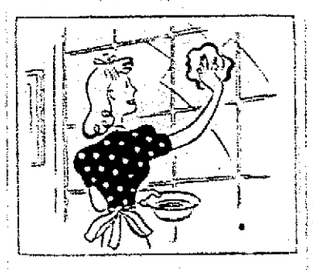
Tips on Spring Work Around Home

By The Associated Press

Spring is here. So is the broom, scrub pail and mop brigade. In keeping with the need of making everything last longer, Pop will join Mom in her work. He'll repair everything that is out of order.

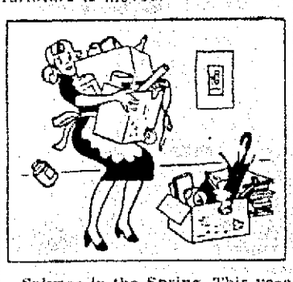
Here are a few how-to-dos:



Get After the Glass. The time to clean up the windows is when the curtains are out for their cleaning. They can be made to shine with a little whiting, powdered chalk or prepared cleanser on a damp cloth. Wiping with a damp cloth is enough to clean glass block panels. Household ammonia will remove fingermarks from mirrors or glass-topped tables.

Dirty Chimneys Are Dangerous. A third of all America's home fires are caused by sparks from unclean or faulty chimneys lighting on inflammable roofs. That's why fixing up the chimney is a vital part of any spring clean-up campaign. The chimney should be repointed and repainted if necessary. It can be cleaned by filling a burlap bag with excelsior and weighting it with several bricks. Tie to a strong rope and lower into the chimney till the flues are clean.

Working Wonders with Wax. A little wax can do a lot of things at spring cleaning time. Try applying wax to painted window sills to prevent their being marred by splash-overs of rain or condensation. Waxing the feet of furniture will keep them from scratching waxed floors when the furniture is moved.



Salvage in the Spring. This year the best spring slogan is clean up but don't clean out. Take those old clothes in the attic to a relief organization. Bundle up the old newspapers, wrapping papers and rags for sale to a collector, and the magazines and books for the USO.

Make Ready the Roof. Spring is the season for mailing the old roof weather-tight and fire-resistant to last out the war. For extra, insulating thicknesses asphalt shingles can be laid right over the old roof, but the surface should first be cleaned up and smoothed down.

Insulating Board Can Be Had in Large Sizes

Insulating board planks come in sheets as large as 12 feet long by four feet wide. These large pieces can be turned lengthwise, and one piece will finish an entire upper wall 12 feet long.

Many decorators always think of panels only six or eight inches wide, and object to the effect of breaking up the wall space every few inches.

THERMOSTAT CONTROL

A new type of thermostat has a special dial which enables the homeowner to adjust the instrument in accordance with the individual control characteristics of the heating system. No two heating systems are exactly alike; they differ in firing rate and type of firing equipment, size and arrangement of pipes, and kind of fuel used. The special dial enables the operator to obtain various adjustments in addition to the usual type of temperature setting.

COAL IS CHIEF FUEL

Of the 14,000,000 homes in the United States which have central heating plants, coal and coke are used in more than 54 per cent. Almost 20 million homes are reported to be without central heating equipment, but most of these have heating stoves. The largest percentage of homes without central heating systems are in the south.

It is estimated that the Army Air Forces will contain 2,500,000 men by the end of 1943.

Adding Organic Matter Improves Quality of Mediocre Garden Plots

Top quality vegetables can be grown easiest in excellent soil that has been well prepared. J. H. Boyd, specialist in vegetable gardening, Ohio State university, says most gardeners have to get along with rather mediocre garden plots so they should try to overcome as many of the disadvantages as possible.

Soils which naturally are dense and heavy, or subsoils thrown on the surface by excavating, are not well adapted to vegetable production. To get good results, the gardener should add organic matter to such soils and should also loosen them so air and water can enter more easily.

Organic matter can be worked into the soil by plowing or spading down manure, peat moss, clover chaff, or any decayed vegetable material. Leaf humus will serve the purpose but too many gardeners burn leaves instead of letting them rot in a compost pile. Unrotted leaves will do more harm than good in the garden.

Sand and screened ashes will serve to loosen heavy soils for gardening but these materials will not be as beneficial as applications of organic materials. Sawdust should not be placed in a garden unless the material is well rotted. The tannic acid present in fresh sawdust may injure plants.

Any material used to loosen garden soils should be worked thoroughly into the ground by plowing or spading. This means that the top eight inches of soil should be worked and the organic matter mixed with it. Spading can be done most easily if a furrow is first turned the whole length or width of the garden and, then, successive furrows are turned until the whole garden has been spaded.

Backaches can be partly prevented and a better job of gardening completed if the spading is done carefully. The spade should be shoved into the ground an equal distance back from the furrow each time, the slice broken off, and the spadeful placed so the top soil and the materials on the surface will be turned underneath.

A spading fork is easier to use than a spade if the fork is available. Attempts to speed up the gardening by spading too wide furrows will result in a portion of the ground being undisturbed, and this will make planting and cultivation more difficult.

SATURDAY, APRIL 10, 1943

Ohio's Reserve Fund

REFUSAL of the Ohio house to repeal the sales tax on restaurant meals and druggists' prescriptions reopens the issue of the state's steadily accumulating reserve fund. The Democrats are dead set against it, and the Republicans, naturally, are in favor of it. They see no chance of a treasury surplus ever becoming a political liability, and probably they are right.

But the final judgment will be handed down in the form of experience, not opinion. The only reliable way to guess about the outcome of the reserve fund being accumulated in the treasury is to try to foresee the form of events in the years ahead. Ohio's revenue will not increase without higher rates of taxation, which is unthinkable; higher rates become virtually the exclusive privilege of the federal government in wartime.

The main question always has been whether it is better to spend all the revenue produced by rates maintained at pre-war levels, or to save some of it for a rainy day. The subordinate question has been whether to maintain the rates. On the issue of restaurant meals and prescriptions, the lower house has voted to maintain the rates. On the larger issue, saving vs. spending, even the Democrats now seem unwilling to advocate a frittering away of money that may be needed desperately later on. If that need never appears, Ohio may be charged with a mistake, but if it does this state will be fortunate. Contrary to the rule prevailing in Washington for many years, the American people still have a warm place in their hearts for putting away a little something for the rainy day that nearly always comes.

Union Without Formality

LABORED approaches to better understanding between the United States and Great Britain must have seemed pretty tedious to the advance units of Britons and Americans who met east of El Guetar in Tunisia. Theirs was union without formality—a joining of forces in a common cause.

They symbolized the cooperation of Anglo-American forces in the struggle to save their security from the threat of Axis conquest. Like the aviators who have shared danger in the air battle over Europe, they were vastly more than theorists speculating on possibilities of closer friendship; they were companions in arms.

There may be, perhaps, at some later date a similar meeting between them and the fighting men of Russia and China. Already they have clasped hands with the French and the Norwegians, fought side by side, and fought as members of the same team. While there is room for the academic approach to unity, it may be suspected that the problems raised are being solved better and faster on battlefields by fighting men than they ever can be solved anywhere else.

Deadlines Should Be Absolute

EXTENSION of the 1943 auto license sticker deadline will plague Ohio next year. It will be a headache when the time comes for renewal of driving licenses. The work of years has been undone by suspending the rule that a deadline is intended to be absolute.

Years ago, automobile owners learned to expect extensions of deadlines as a matter of course, with the result that many motorists made a practice of waiting until the first deadline had been passed. The state now has reopened the same primrose path.

Eventually, it will have to be closed again. Undoing the damage won't be easy. There will seem to be a thousand and one reasons for letting the putter-offers get away with their act. Actually, there is no good reason at all. There was ample time to obtain licenses before the deadline. Those who preferred to wait now are confirmed in their judgment that nothing would be done about them.

Jitteritis Victims Survived

THE SEASON for worrying about respiratory troubles is passing as the weather moderates. While communities have had various light epidemics of serious diseases and heavy epidemics of less serious afflictions, such as measles, there has been no general epidemic.

Chronic sufferers from jitteritis were sure last fall that dreadful things would happen to the national health before spring. Perhaps they can produce statistics to prove their fears were justified, but that is not the common impression now that spring is well under way.

The jitteritis victims now can worry about the consequences of summertime while organizing their apprehensions for the coming of another winter. Perhaps they will seize on food rationing as the next focal point for their misgivings, or they may stand pat on their prediction that there can't be a war without another influenza epidemic—or, to give their fears full scope, a pandemic. It is something to think about as the sniffle months go into history and the nation prepares to grapple with the disorders that go with summer—mostly digestive upsets from food and water that fall below the safety standard.

New Price Control Plan Seen as Big Preventive Step Against Inflation.

By WALTER LIPPMANN

NEW YORK, [illegible] 10—Recently [illegible] have been raised [illegible] and prices [illegible] taken, at [illegible] most dangerous. Nevertheless, Mr. Roosevelt is at long last in control of the situation, and we are [illegible] very much nearer to a [illegible] solution than we were 10 days ago.

At that time two opposing forces were threatening to overthrow the whole wartime wage and price structure. Mr. Lewis was demanding a wage rate increase which destroyed the "Little Steel" formula on the ground that retail prices had broken through the ceiling. If Mr. Lewis were to get his demands all other trade union leaders would be bound by the law of self-preservation to follow him or lose their leadership of organized labor.

Parallel with this deadly threat to the wage structure there was the movement of the farm bloc, as expressed through the Bankhead and Pace bills, to knock off the ceiling over farm prices.

The combination of these two converging movements brought the situation to its most acute crisis. A crisis is a point at which things must either become worse or much better. Ten days ago things took a decided turn for the better.

Turning Point

The turn began with the recognition, by Messrs. Green and Murray that wage earners could not gain the wage-rate increases because there could never keep up with runaway prices. At the White House conference on Thursday, April 1, therefore, they radically altered the labor union strategy by agreeing to demand effective price control rather than higher wage rates.

This action made it possible for congress to shelve the Pace bill and to wait and see before overriding the President's veto of the Bankhead bill.

The net result of these two actions was to put the influence of labor behind the stabilization of prices and the influence of the farm bloc behind the stabilization of wages. Thus, instead of converging to destroy the whole price-wage structure, the two great interests were converging to support and enforce the stabilization program which Mr. Byrnes directs. Upon this new situation the President's latest order rests.

Nevertheless, the new wage policy cannot be sustained unless the cost of living is successfully controlled. This means that rationed goods must be made regularly available in the promised quantities at the official prices. The government's ration coupon, and the OPA price for the food that the coupon entitles people to buy, must be made as sound as a government bond. Its face value must never need question when it is presented.

The order recognizes that the farmers may be given "support prices, subsidies or other inducements as may be authorized by law and deemed necessary to maintain or increase production, provided that such action does not increase the cost of living." This might seem to say that no inducements may be given to farmers by Mr. Chester Davis if Mr. Brown's statisticians make a calculation that the consumer would have to pay higher prices to cover the inducements.

Government's Role

But this is not necessarily, and certainly it ought not to be, what the new order means. It ought not to mean, as we have always incorrectly assumed in the past, that the price paid by the consumer limits the price that is paid to the farmer. There is no reason in the world why a higher price, if it is necessary, should not be paid to the farmer and the difference covered out of government funds.

The farm bloc, we are told is opposed to accepting subsidies on the ground that the New Dealers have a tendency to attach meddlesome conditions. That objection can be met quite simply, as Ia was by Mr. Hoover in the other war, as it has been in England and elsewhere. Instead of paying subsidies to farmers, let the government buy the whole crop at the economic price, and then let it resell to the private distributors at the OPA price that part of the crop which is for civilians. The difference between the two prices should then be written off as part of the costs of the war.

The government is already buying for the Army, the Navy and lend-lease a sizable proportion of the same products which are being rationed to the civilians. It cannot be much more difficult, administratively, and, in fact, it may be simpler in the long run, to buy the whole crop.

This method does more than solve the problem of how to keep consumer prices down while paying farmers proper inducement. It is the most effective method of making rationing work. For instead of relying on "ceilings," announced by fiat and backed by jail sentences and fines, the government which allots food to the distributors can, by threatening to withhold it, compel them to maintain the ceilings.

The High Cost of Dying

Charge for Violent Death in Movies Has Increased.

By ROBBIN COONS

HOLLYWOOD, April 10—The price of violent death on the screen more common now than ever before because of the great number of war pictures being made, has gone up sevenfold.

Six or seven years ago an ordinary "death" on a motion picture battlefield by an extra player was adjusted at $5 for a simple "own-length" fall and graded upwards from that according to the distance fallen and the risks taken.

The same service today begins at $35 minimum and goes from there to a point where a risk-taking stunt man sometimes makes several hundred dollars in adjustments every day he works. Nearly everyone who watches them work seems to agree they earn their money.

Price ceilings have had little effect upon the rising cost of screen death, reports Fred Messenger, a casting director at Warners, and the man who handles most of the adjustments there.

* * *

Almost a Record

What Shakespeare calls "a necessary end" is individual and different in each scene in every picture in which violent death is shown. "Edge of Darkness," says Messenger, involved more adjustments than any other recent picture. On several days from 40 to 50 men who had been "killed" in that story of occupied Norway were paid off from $35 to $200 each.

The $5 adjustment for a violent screen demise was about the lowest ever actually paid although, at one time, there was a basic rate that called for $2.50 additional pay for falling dead one's own length in a battle scene. That was a fiction, however, according to Messenger, and few extras and no stunt men have worked for so little since the very early days of motion pictures.

No Burial Costs

In this respect only, perhaps, the extra or the stunt man has a distinct advantage over the star or featured player, who gets no extra pay or adjustment for dying in a picture. Errol Flynn manages to live through "Edge of Darkness" and so is not involved in the high cost of screen death but Helmut Dantine, who dies, and thereby pleases his audiences, got not one cent extra above his salary for apparently ending his own life.

No adjustments are made for burial scenes since it is obvious that no real players are ever actually buried on land or at sea in pictures. The dummies serve a good purpose for such scenes and require no paymaster service. Only real people, taking real chances, are paid extra for violent death on the screen.

MEDUSA WITH THE SNAKY LOCKS

Even Experts Disagree About Security

By Jack Durant
Associated Press Correspondent.

EVEN as you and I, college professors disagree on the much-discussed cradle-to-grave social security blueprint.

Two experts who have spent a lifetime studying social and economic problems, Alvin H. Hansen, professor of economics, and Pitirim A. Sorokin, professor of sociology at Harvard university, are as far apart as the poles.

Sorokin recently bet Hansen $5 that the United States would have less "real prosperity" five years after the war ends than it had in 1929. "Our material and spiritual resources are too small to make it practical," he said. At best, he believes, the social blueprint could only "clip the wool from the rich sheep to make a thin blanket that would but partly cover the poor."

Sorokin was exiled from Russia by both the czarist and Communist governments for being too liberal. His argument against complete social security, which he admits is a beautiful idea, is based on two fundamental premises:

First, the United States has not enough natural resources to make the plan work without exploiting other countries for our benefit. He says the same thing applies on a larger scale to the Beveridge plan in England which "can only guarantee social security to all her people by exploiting her colonies."

Secondly, and more important to Sorokin, he believes our spiritual resources are too slim ever to allow the plan to work.

"To many people think reaching a material Utopia is simply a matter of technological improvements, engineering and economic blue prints," he asserts.

"They forget that cultural and spiritual values are just as necessary and that no long-range economic program is possible unless there is a moral universe in which people are willing to live by the Golden Rule."

Spiritual bankruptcy leads to exploitation and exploitation to domination by brute force" and to wars, "a projection of moral anarchy," he says. Then:

"The standard of living drops precipitately with war. See how far it has dropped in this country after only one year of war. The average Englishman will be fortunate to be as well off materially after this war as he was before."

Sorokin finds little evidence that nations or groups of people are living up to the "Golden Rule—the most important single spiritual yardsick."

"Unless the Atlantic Charter is to represent anything more than empty phrases, the standard of living in other countries must be raised to a par with the United States," he says.

This he considers a gigantic long-range task which "selfish snatch-grabbing pressure groups" show little signs of desiring to undertake in the Golden Rule spirit.

HANSEN'S optimism for post-war prosperity which calls for utilizing the cradle-to-grave social security as an economic cornerstone also is based upon certain fundamental premises.

Such a social security program, he says, "can act as a powerful balance wheel, offsetting the fluctuation which we have had for 100 years in the private enterprise sphere.

"This concept introduced a wholly new notion of what true governmental economy means. True economy in government expenditures means the elimination of waste and inefficiency.

"The picture of the miser who thinks he is achieving genuine wealth by curtailing consumption until he starves, simultaneously adding to his pile of gold, is far from a grotesque illustration of some of our policies in the past."

Hansen states that our productive resources cannot be fully utilized solely by "private plants to produce goods," and recommends that private enterprise be supplemented with public spending in such fields involving "conservation and development."

Under this he includes urban redevelopments, express highways, terminal facilities, hydro-electric power, rural electrification, soil conservation, flood control, irrigation, drainage projects and reforestation.

With a sad smile, Dr. Sorokin shakes his head at Dr. Hansen's enthusiasm.

"The pharaohs of Egypt and emperors of Rome also had social security blueprints and where are they know?" Sorokin wants to know.

"Hang around. After my mother leaves, we're going to have a jam session!"

An official announcement issued from the White House following a cabinet meeting stated that President Harding did not regard his proposal for affiliation with the World court by the United States as constituting any "flirtation" with the League of Nations.

Dr. George T. Harding Jr. of Columbus, brother of the president, was a visitor at the White House. He was one of Mrs. Harding's physicians and was quoted as being much pleased with the improvement in her health following her vacation trip in the south.

An early morning fire that for a time threatened to wipe out an entire block of Marion's business section on East Center street did about $12,000 damage, mostly in the Eagles lodge rooms. There was also damage in the Smart & Waddell shoe store, Nelson's jewelry store and a number of offices.

Mrs. Henry Strouse, 79, died at her home in Galion.

Declaring that there was too much diversified community and civic work in Marion, Will M. All Are Heroes

Our Men Who Fall in Training Deserve Just as Much Respect as Their Brothers in Action.

By DAMON RUNYON

HALF A DOZEN service plane crashes in the United States were reported by the army at one last week, with a death toll of nine members. In addition, three American girls entertaining troops for USO were killed in a crash in a Royal Canadian air force plane near Vancouver.

This is an unusually high casualty list for the period of time involved. Since the beginning of the war we have lost hundreds of men in similar accidents, most of them while in some stage of air training. That was the case in nearly all the accidents reported last week. However, as against the enormous number of men we have in air training, one of the most hazardous forms of preparation for war, the percentage of accidents is probably not unduly high.

Most accidents of this nature are unavoidable. The greatest possible care and all the precautions of mechanical science cannot prevent mishaps in this chanciest of games especially when so many of the men engaged in it are young, eager and daring. Occasionally, perhaps, some of them take too much of a gamble, yet accidents occur even to men of experience and caution. Something happens that could not be foreseen or guarded against, and a plane crashes to earth, killing all on board.

IT IS part of the terrible price we pay for war. A few lines of details of the accident and a list of the dead appear in the newspapers usually well back of the front pages that tell of the air and sea and land battles all over the globe and the heroic deeds of our boys there. Few readers pause to reflect that the victims of the accident were also heroes.

They died in the uniform of their country in the line of duty. Their names must be emblazoned on the roll of our honored dead with those of the men who fall in dogfights in the air, at battle stations on the high seas, charging machinegun positions of the enemy. As Joseph K. Vodrey, vice president of Brush-Moore Newspapers of Ohio, suggests in a note that is the inspiration of this column, they have played an important and vital part in the winning of this war. I say to their bereaved families throughout the nation that these boys died in glory as surely as if they had fallen in combat.

For that matter, I say that the man who, a soldier of the United States, died in a hospital bed of illness contracted while in the service, without ever having left the shores of his native land, dies an heroic death. He gives his life to his country the same as the man who is killed on a battlefield in North Africa or the South Pacific. There are hardships for soldiers in camps at home that sometimes produce physical menaces almost as great as those in the field.

I HAVE the deepest respect for every man who wears the uniform. I have no patience whatever with civilians who speak lightly of any type of service a soldier may be performing, though it may seem inconsequential and far removed from the battle lines. I reflect that at least he is in there, while his critics are only spectators.

I am particularly annoyed by the ribes of older civilians who know there is no chance of being grabbed for the service themselves, always want to ask them what they did in the other war. A man who is not in the service, never was in the service and has no intention of going into the service has no right to be critical of any man in uniform, no matter what kind of work he is doing. I have no doubt that some men in uniform deliberately sought, and, perhaps through pull, obtained soft and safe jobs, but even these I cannot decide as long as they are doing something while in perforce, a sideliner.

I know that as we get deeper and deeper into the war no man in service can have a guarantee that he is going to remain soft and safe. I know a few who thought they had land right side up, but the service eventually set took them. They are now trying to hit the enemy's best pitching.

Nazi "Culture" Hit

By SPOON RIVER SAM
Associated Press Features

The Allies sure have got into a good habit. They keep bombing Germany. Of late it has been a fit night out for man or Nazi.

Sure strange how the RAF can pick out the culture spots. According to the Berlin radio all they ever hit are historical institutions and monuments. Of course, now and then a bomb goes astray and hits something that's clear out of the Nazi world, like a military object.

But on the whole, to hear Berlin tell it, the RAF seems to put its mind on bombing boarding houses and kindergartens.

Well, I think Berlin forgets to take into account their country is swimming in culture. It's too hard for the bombers to break through the Nazi defenses of libraries, statues and music conservatories. Germany spent all its time developing art galleries and such, and was caught unprepared for such foreign business as war.

It sure looks like the Nazis are going to have to call a halt to their pursuit of the finer things in life.

They being such a sensitive and tender race you can understand how that upsets them. They're fearful of the effect on public morale when word gets around the biggest danger during an air raid is to get hit by flying monuments, famous paintings and bookcases.

So They Say—

I'm proud that they were able to qualify for duty with the United States fleet. They were not afraid to fight and they weren't afraid to die for their country—and for you and me.—Thomas Sullivan on christening destroyer "Sullivans" for her five sons lost on the Juneau.

Runaway Halts Victory Garden Harrowing Job

Marion had its first runaway reported in many months when a team of horses being used to harrow a Victory garden patch at the southeast corner of Forest Lawn boulevard and Indiana avenue ran away yesterday at 4 p. m.

Racing up Forest Lawn boulevard they came to a tree in the parkway along the boulevard. One horse went on one side of the tree, the other on the other side. Harness was ripped apart, the harrow was broken loose from the harness and the horses continued north although slowed by the impact. The harrow was damaged and the tree was skinned.

Merlie Sipes of south of Marion, working in a nearby garden, finally halted the horses. The team was being used in the garden of Boyd Brown of Pennsylvania avenue. He said the animals started to run after the driver left them to talk to a man in a nearby patch. The name of the team's owner was not learned.

Tax Collection Shows Wyandot Co. Increase

Special to The Star

UPPER SANDUSKY, April 10—Collection of taxes in Wyandot county showed an increase this year over last year, according to a report released today by Deputy Treasurer Karl F. Kraus.

The total of the December real estate taxes after the books were closed April 1, was $216,743.38, showing a substantial increase over last year's $203,735.42. Tangible tax collections also showed a marked increase. This year's collections were $31,995.65 and last year's was but $27,711.54.

There was a decrease noted in the classified tax collections where the amount this year was $6,157.59 as compared to $7,557.46. These figures seem to show, Deputy Kraus said, that fewer people are leaving money accrue at interest, which is taxable and are now investing in other ways. Collections of delinquent taxes also raised sharply this year.

Congressman Favors Medals for Newsmen

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, April 10 — Legislation to award medals of honors to war correspondents who are wounded or distinguish themselves by conspicuous service in actual combat was proposed yesterday by Representative Dewey (R-Ill.)

"In many respects these men who file their dispatches from battlefronts, giving us the daily news of the progress of our armed forces, are unsung and unheralded heroes," Dewey told the house, adding that "it is my information that three correspondents have been killed, 13 have been disabled and 30 are reported missing."

The average war correspondent, Dewey said, "while not a component part of the armed forces, experiences and suffers what our fighting men experience and suffer. These experiences he translates into words and pictures that we, here at home, may better understand that which is taking place with our armed forces in all parts of this war torn world."

Name Placed in Sweater Brings English Letter

Her name and address placed in a sweater she knit a year ago last March for Bundles for Britain brought a letter of appreciation to Mrs. Paul Sifritt of 340 Girard avenue recently. The letter is from Marian G. Penny of Tauton, Somerset, England, whose father received the sweater.

"Dad has been in the Royal Navy for 16 months and he does a great deal of night watching on the decks, so you can guess how your beautifully knitted pullover helps to keep him warm when the icy winds are blowing in from the sea," Marian writes. "He says the Navy does not know how to thank you Americans for the lovely warm clothing you are sending them."

Regarding rationing she said they were allowed 60 coupons per person for 16 month. "We have to give up 18 coupons for costumes and overcoats, five for shoes and three for stockings," but, she adds, "we have got used to it now." Food is very severely rationed she wrote—one egg every three months.

Mrs. Sifritt has made 28 sweaters but this was the only one in which she placed her address.

LABOR LOSES FIGHT AGAINST HOBBS BILL

Votes Measure Called Blow at Unions.

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, April 10—Organized labor lost its first legislative test of the Seventy-eighth congress yesterday as the house passed the controversial Hobbs bill making robbery and extortion punishable under the 1934 racketeering act.

The 219 to 107 roll call vote sent the legislation to the senate after overwhelming rejection of an amendment which the American Federation of Labor contended would have made the measure acceptable to labor. Offered by Representative Celler, Democrat, New York, the amendment would have recognized as legitimate activities of unions also legalized under the Norris-LaGuardia anti-injunction act, the Clayton anti-trust law, the railway labor act and the national labor relations act.

Representative Hobbs, Democrat, Alabama, author of the bill, argued against the amendment contending it would nullify the entire measure. Celler replied that without the amendment labor legislation could be used to prevent organized labor of its "most legal rights."

The New Yorker told the House that behind the bill seek to deal a blow at labor which is "unjustifiable" and to "visit the sins of the few upon the many."

Other leaders, he declared, have condemned the actions of union officials which Hobbs previously has said made the legislation necessary.

Bernard Pearl Brewer, 32, of 324 Mound street was arrested at 12:30 a. m. today at West Center and Davids street on a charge of reckless operation of a motor vehicle, after, according to police reports, he had been involved in two accidents within 16 minutes.

At 11:59 p. m. he ran into the rear end of a car driven by Miller Beery, 30, of 338 Fies avenue at West Center and Davids street, damaging the rear of the Beery car and the front of his own, and at 12:15 he struck a parked car near the same intersection, police said. He was fined $10 and costs in municipal court this morning.

Arthur J. Packard, 40, of Mt. Vernon was arrested at 5:50 p. m. on Route 98 by the highway patrol on a charge of speeding. He was fined $10 and costs.

AFRICA

planes were lost yesterday.

(The German high command in its communique, recorded by The Associated Press, admitted a "violent defensive battle" was continuing and that the axis forces were retreating.

(Winston Burdett, CBS commentator in North Africa, said the allies had launched a new thrust against the axis flank in the central sectors, and quoted Gen. Montgomery as telling his troops in a message:

("Let us get on to the third attack. Let us make the enemy face and endure a first class Dunkerque. If we collect prisoners at the present rate the enemy will soon have no infantry left to hold his positions."

(The capture of nearly 12,000 prisoners in the last few days by British and American forces, added to 8,000 captured in the Mareth line battle possibly had reduced Rommel's army, estimated at 80,000, by about a fourth. The largest axis forces were believed to be in the north, however.)

The British Eighth army, pushing up steadily from the south along the coast, was giving the enemy no rest.

They likewise were reported retreating from the inland rail town of Mezzouna, apparently seeking the shortest way to the axis bastions of Tunis and Bizerte.

Patton Advances

They fell back as Lieut. Gen. George S. Patton Jr.'s American Second Army corps pushed on from Maknassy, on the Gafsa-Maknares road, to take the height of Djebel Mazaila, north of Maknassy.

Boring in toward Tunis and Bizerte in the north, the British First army under Lieut. Gen. K. A. N. Anderson was reported to have occupied "tactically important positions," while knocking out two axis tanks with long range artillery and taking 400 prisoners. Rain and mud were said to be slowing operations.

As Patton's forces along with British and French troops pinched in on Rommel's exposed inland flank, they were reported by the British radio to be within "little more than 20 miles" of a second junction with the Eighth army.

(Capt. Ludwig Sertorius, German radio commentator, said in a Berlin broadcast there were indications the allied forces in North-Central Tunisia were prepared for a major "break-through" toward Kairouan and the last remaining axis eastcoast port of Sousse, while the German agency Transocean broadcast a dispatch saying "the great superiority of the enemy in men and materials is showing its effect.")

In view of the terrain, allied observers saw little likelihood Rommel would make a determined stand until he reached the more readily defensible territory to the north of Sousse.

Allied air blows which destroyed 130 enemy vehicles in the past two days and damaged another 200 presented one of Rommel's most difficult problems, and he continued to lose men by capture and under air assaults.

The Eighth army reported taking 9,500 prisoners in the past five days. Patton's corps bagged an additional 1,300 in mopping-up operations at El Guetar and a French communique reported at least 400 more captured.

Superiority of the big allied air fleet continued without serious challenge. It was disclosed officially that since the opening of the air offensive at the Mareth line March 20 allied air forces in North Africa had shot down 302 enemy planes at a cost of 110 allied aircraft.

Sharp Drop in Wheat Production Predicted

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, April 10 — A sharp drop in the nation's wheat production from the high 1942 levels was predicted today by the agriculture department as an aftermath of unfavorable weather and retarded work on farms experiencing labor shortages.

The winter crop was forecast at 558,551,000 bushels, considered average, but 145,000,000 bushels less than the 1942 harvest. If the per acre yield for the spring crop equals that for the winter, as is usual, the combined total would be 757,000,000, a decline of 224,000,000 from last year. This would be 325,000,000 less than the amount estimated to be used in this country during the marketing season ended July 1.

The 1943 crop however will be supplemented by a reserve of 1,000,000,000 bushels from previous harvests, the department said.

Acreage yield for the winter crop was reckoned at 14.9 bushels. It was 18.3 last year.

Milk production rose in March about one per cent over the corresponding month of 1942 with a total of 9,750,000,000 pounds, the report said.

U. S. SETS FAST PACE IN BUILDING SHIPS

Fighting Craft Laid Down on Heroic Scale, Knox Says.

By The Associated Press

INDIANAPOLIS, April 10 — The United States, producing fighting ships on a heroic scale, is at the beginning of ultimate victory, says Secretary Knox.

The Navy secretary, at a press conference last night, asserted the United States was "just getting away to a good start," and "we now are in a position to dictate where the fighting will take place."

"We are in the beginning of a situation which will lead to ultimate victory," Knox told the press conference.

At a rally opening the second war loan campaign, Knox told of the growing might of the nation's Navy and said production of fighting equipment, mainly aircraft carriers and destroyer escorts, was on a "heroic scale."

He said the Navy would complete more new fighting ships in 1943 than were in service at the end of 1942 and disclosed the fighting fleet's tonnage would increase 66 per cent this year, without allowing for probable battle losses.

Knox also told of Navy production plans for next year, asserting "we will make further additions in 1944 to insure the obliteration of Japanese sea power and to sweep the German and Italian U-boats and surface ships from the seas."

He warned, however, "the worst of this war lies ahead of us," and that German under-sea power is "an ever-increasing peril."

To combat that and other perils, the Navy secretary said, "our efforts this year will be marked by two special accomplishments upon which we have bent our energy and all our will — airplane carriers and destroyer escorts. * * * the number of carriers, both large and auxiliary, completed in 1943 will multiply many times our total carrier force at the end of 1942."

FOILS CENSOR

SAN ANTONIO, TEX.—Censorship can't keep a good flier down—if the case of a Brookfield aviator is any example. Recently held overnight in New York by a heavy rain, he was informed by a telegraph clerk that "weather information is censored" when he tried to wire his wife of the delay. His wife received a message, and understood perfectly however. The telegram said: "Staying overnight—even the ducks are grounded."

Relative Calm in Pacific Likely To Hold Some Time

By DEWITT MACKENZIE

The Pacific war remains in a state of relative calm—a condition likely to persist to greater or less degree until the allies are prepared for an all-out offensive.

The Japs are busy consolidating the gains of their banditry—a task so vast it's taxing the strength of the Mikado's little men. Any attacks which they make are for purposes of defense and not because they want more territory.

The allied forces are checkmating brilliantly here, and hitting aggressively there, to keep the enemy from digging in and to weaken his striking power. Broadly speaking, however, the United Nations are doing a holding job until equipment is available for the big smash.

Day Not in Sight

When will the day of reckoning come? Well, the signs are too dim to read. It may well be that it will have to wait until Herr Hitler has been rendered impotent. That would seem to be a question which even the allied high command can't answer yet.

Yesterday Gen. Douglas MacArthur, in a statement on the first anniversary of Bataan's fall, grieved over the fate of the Philippines under the Jap heel and said "from the bottom of a seared and stricken heart I pray that a merciful God may not delay too long their redemption."

So even the supreme commander of the allied nations in the western Pacific can't see the end.

Still, it isn't the great, all-out offensive against the Japs which we have to worry about. When Hitler has been mastered, and the terrific allied strength is released from the European theater, the United Nations fighting-machine will roll all right.

Our danger lies in the present moment—this delicate period of holding the enemy in check and preparing the way for the kill.

Now is the time when allied misjudgment might be disastrous—not after we have our full strength massed in the Pacific. We shall be invincible on that day, but we aren't now.

During this time of watchful preparation it's imperative the cause of the United Nations be in skilled hands—the most competent available. He must be a man of extreme patience—for the waiting is trying. He must be able to get the most out of his inadequate equipment. He must have foresight in strategy and tactics. He must have leadership in handling both troops and civilians. And above all he mustn't make any big mistake.

MacArthur Selected

In short the commander-in-chief in the western Pacific at this crucial juncture must have qualifications ranking him among the outstanding generals of history.

General MacArthur was selected as the man best fitted for this exacting leadership. Since his appointment he has been praised by our allies. Australia gratefully credits him with having stood off Japanese invasion. He has held his bridge-head as few generals could have done.

So it seems more than passing strange that anyone should try to get the general involved in politics, even as a candidate for the presidency. He is our sheet-anchor in the Pacific storm. Moreover, as might be expected from a great soldier, he has emphasized that he wants nothing to do with politics, but desires only to get ahead with his job.

more but Ways and Means Chairman Doughton (D-NC) insisted on giving priorities to other subjects.

The senate kept up its own tug of war over which committee—the Truman war investigating or the military affairs—should visit the battle zones for a first-hand inquiry. It began to look as if each would stand its ground and possibly take turns at making the trip to possibly North Africa, which Rep. Davis (D-Tenn) said "might relieve traffic congestion on the ocean lanes."

Top legislative action came in the house with passage, 270 to 107, of the Hobbs bill which lists robberies or extortion in interstate commerce as liable to prosecution under the anti-racketeering law. Labor leaders, fighting the measure strenuously, complained it is aimed at labor because it would in their opinion infringe on recognized rights of unions. Proponents contended the bill never mentioned labor or labor unions. The bill went to the senate with every indication there would be no letup in the dispute there.

Indians Opening Series With Reds Today, Confident Their Hitting Power Is Returning

Boudreau Surveys List and Finds He Has Five .300 Batters with Keltner Leading Parade with .368.

By The Associated Press

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) April 10—The Cleveland Indians meet their most powerful training foeson foes today the Cincinnati Reds, but they'll be doing so with a little more confidence in their hitting power than they would have done a few days ago.

Manager Lou Boudreau has pocketed Cubby Dean, Allie Reynolds and Ray Poat to hurl in the series opener with the Redlegs, hit less heavily by the war than any other team in either league.

With Jeff Heath a holdout and such lusty hitters as Weatherly and Fleming no longer on Cleveland's roster, Tribal hitting power has been an enigma. That is, it was an unknown quantity until yesterday when Boudreau took stock of his team's training camp batting averages and discovered he had five .300 hitters.

Keltner Hits .368

Ken Keltner is leading with .368, representing seven hits in 19 times at bat. Hard on his heels is Boudreau himself with .360. Others in the .300 class are Otto Denning, Gene DeSautels and Roy Cullenbine. Denning and Hank Edwards, the rookie outfielder, share runs batted in honors with eight apiece. Edwards is batting .290 with two home runs and a triple after a slow start.

The major disappointment thus far has been Bucky Reed's failure [illegible] of him. He has [illegible] 19 times at bat now given him an average of .105 for a last place tie with Eddie Carnett.

The [illegible] noticed before yesterday's at the Red Camp but a couple of [illegible] made it [illegible] to come. Draft Bobs Up Again

Another [illegible] prospect to draft [illegible] showed up in the person of Mike McCormick, regular center fielder, as he received orders to report for a preliminary physical April 19. Mike, an expectant father, is now classed as 3-A.

Manager Bill McKechnie indicated he would concentrate on the "varsity" hurlers in the Cleveland series in an effort to whip them into top-top shop by season inaugural time, April 21. Bucky Walters still is bothered by the sprained ankle sustained during the second training day, and may not be in shape by the start of the season.

BROOKLYN DODGERS' BEST ROOKIE HAS NO CHANCE TO STAY

Peck Up from Milwaukee, Still Ailing from Injured Foot.

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, April 10—One of the best major league prospects ever to get up to the big show without a chance at slugging is Harold Arthur Peck of the Brooklyn Dodgers.

Peck was one of the stars of the Milwaukee Brewers last season and led the American association in total hits. He was also a prize that even though he shot two toes off his left foot in a hunting accident last September, Larry MacPhail bought him for a fancy price.

Peck's problem now is that his foot has not yet mended sufficiently for him to earn an outfield berth with the Dodgers and when it does get well he must report for induction.

"I still feel quite a bit of pain," he said today "but I wear a special shoe with sponge rubber in the toe and I do a little running every day. I don't know how long it will take to heal but I expect to play baseball somewhere this year.

"I was classified 1-A last fall before the draft board knew about my foot. When they examined me they didn't give me any new classification, they just told me and my doctor to report back as soon as the foot was well. I figure that I will be able to get around on it for a couple of hours a day in a ball game before I will be in shape for the Army. I have to wear a special dress shoe, too, and I wouldn't be able to do much marching for some time."

Peck is married and the father of a nine-months-old daughter. He was classed 3-A last September 3 when, with four games of the association schedule remaining, he took advantage of an off day to go hunting—and sent a shotgun blast into his foot.

MacPhail, then president of the Dodgers, took the gamble that he would recover and turned over an infielder valued at $7,500, Charles Brewster, and agreed to pay an estimated $15,000 if the Dodgers decided by May 15 to keep Peck.

This decision now is up to Rickey.

Peck's problem now is that his foot has not yet mended sufficiently for him to earn an outfield berth with the Dodgers and when it does get well he must report for induction.

"I still feel quite a bit of pain," he said today "but I wear a special shoe with sponge rubber in the toe and I do a little running every day. I don't know how long it will take to heal but I expect to play baseball somewhere this year.

"I was classified 1-A last fall before the draft board knew about my foot. When they examined me they didn't give me any new classification, they just told me and my doctor to report back as soon as the foot was well. I figure that I will be able to get around on it for a couple of hours a day in a ball game before I will be in shape for the Army. I have to wear a special dress shoe, too, and I wouldn't be able to do much marching for some time."

Peck is married and the father of a nine-months-old daughter. He was classed 3-A last September 3 when, with four games of the association schedule remaining, he took advantage of an off day to go hunting—and sent a shotgun blast into his foot.

MacPhail, then president of the Dodgers, took the gamble that he would recover and turned over an infielder valued at $7,500, Charles Brewster, and agreed to pay an estimated $15,000 if the Dodgers decided by May 15 to keep Peck.

This decision now is up to Rickey.

Physical Education Show To Be Given by Harding Students

A mass physical education demonstration will be held at the Harding stadium on May 20 with virtually all Harding High school boys and girls taking physical training participating.

Supervisors for the giant show will be Vic Dorris, Harding boys' physical education director and football coach, and Florence Coover, girls' physical instructor. Dorris has been planning such a demonstration for several months and now has almost the complete program drawn up.

The events to be staged by the Harding pupils will be varied. Dorris plans to have one mixed group do the "la conga" and perhaps a few other dances. Mass formations which will have a war angle will be presented. There will also be individual sport skills such as boxing, and wrestling as well as group games. Advanced physical education students who comprise the Harding tumbling squad will perform the more difficult mat tricks and gymnastics for the crowd. Dorris expects to have an obstacle course, similar to the ones used in army and camps for toughening recruits. First, trained boys will try their hand at the course followed by untrained and non-conditioned boys.

This will mark the first mass physical demonstration held by the school in which both boys and girls have taken part. The main purpose for putting on this demonstration is to give the people of Marion a bird's-eye view of the physical education program in an American high school during World War II. The steps in the progress of Harding high school's gym activities will be demonstrated.

As many students work after school hours, Dorris is not planning any practices for the majority of the participants. Only the tumbling team, which is working out two times a week in the school gymnasium will receive any training previous to the demonstration.

Gomer Jones Awaits Call for Navy Service

By International News Service

MARTINS FERRY, O., April 10—Gomer Jones, former Ohio State All-American center and head football coach at Martins Ferry high school, awaits word from the U. S. Navy's pre-flight school as to whether he will be accepted for a commission.

The roly-poly boss of the Purple Riders for the past two years attempted to enter the service months ago but was turned down for being overweight. After adhering to a strict diet, he took the Navy physical exam again.

Should Jones enter the service, he will be the second member of the Martins Ferry High school coaching staff to do so. Howard Sandrock, assistant football, junior high basketball and head tennis mentor, is a chief petty officer in the Navy.

Ocean Wave Riding To Cre

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, April 10 — Ben Jones probably wouldn't look too good wearing a saddle and carrying a jockey, but it's plain Ben, rather than his colt, who is luring a lot of the boys and girls onto Ocean Wave's bandwagon for this season's big three-year-old stakes.

This is especially so since the Wave took a four-length walloping from the mud-running specialist, Seven Hearts, in the Arkansas Derby and was nipped by a nose by the high-speed Amber Light in the Louisiana Derby.

Yet, although the Wave has to do the galloping, any number of folks refuse to give up on the husky young son of the English Derby winner, Blenheim II, and the Widener-winning mare, Columbiana, for this year's campaigning, simply because of plain Ben's training magic.

They remember Lawrin and his sore leg five years ago, and they remember what a lot of folks were calling Whirlaway just about this time two years back. But most of all, they remember how plain Ben worked his abracadabra on both of them—and each first on the Derby payoff.

There is some belief, however, that the Wave, winner of only 16 outings, may not be quite much horse as his predecessors, especially since he looked anything but a prime Kentucky Derby darling in his workouts. On the other hand, Whirlaway was just as woeful the winter he got to be three—so woeful, in fact, that Eddie Arcaro at first refused to ride him in the Derby and Preakness.

Naturally, Count Fleet and Swords, which took the [illegible] off, are the head men in this year's Derby-and Preakness betting, but they're going to need more than just healthy appetites to scare out the big three of the season's winter gallopers—Seven Hearts, Amber Light and Ocean Wave.

THURMAN TUCKER
Dykes Points Finger At H

Tucker is tentatively slated for centerfield while the left field job is open, the contenders being Gus (Moose) Solters, Guy Wright, from St. Paul, Ralph Hodgin from San Francisco, Fred Hill from Hollywood, and Tom Jordan from Waterloo.

The White Sox infield appears to have a rookie, probably Bill Grant from St. Paul, at third, along with Joe Kuhel at first, Don Kolloway at second, Luke Appling at short. If Grant can't handle the hot corner, Dykes may shift Appling to third and play another St. Paul rookie, Skeeter Culler, at short.

The squat manager figures he will have a pretty efficient pitching corps composed of Bill Dietrich, Orvall Grove, Joe Haynes, Johnny Humphries, Thornton Lee, Ted Wetland, Jake Wade, Lee Ellis and hard-luck Edgar Smith. Smith, the big left-hander, had a fine '42 season but slipped back from the winning stride the last month or so. It's a capable crew without a single standout. Mike Tresh and Tommy Turner will do the catching.

TRAINING CAMP BRIEFS

By The Associated Press

MUNCIE, Ind., April 10—Pittsburgh and Detroit took the field today for the first of their nine-game exhibition series which winds up at Detroit on April 19.

Manager Frankie Frisch of the Pirates nominated Rip Sewell and Lloyd Dietz for today's encounter while Steve O'Neill of the Tigers picked rookie Frank Overmire and Johnny Gorsica.

Sunday's contest will be played at Evansville and Muncie fans of the Pirates are transporting the players there in private automobiles.

COLLEGE PARK, Md. — Young Early Wynn has demonstrated enough hop on his fast ball and consistently good control in three spring mound assignments that there is some talk he may get the ball to start the opening game for the Washington Senators.

Until now there never was much doubt but that Dutch Leonard, veteran knuckle-baller, would draw the job.

* * *

PLAINFIELD, N. J.—Nate Andrews, who came to the Boston Braves from the Cincinnati Reds during the winter in the deal for Eddie Miller, will be on the mound for the Tribe today against the Newark Bears of the International league. Jim Tobin also is expected to do some hurling.

* * *

NEW YORK—The New York Giants, who have come unbeaten through a series of spring games with service and minor league nines, collide with the Boston Red Sox today. The Sox have been scored upon only once in their last 35 innings of play.

* * *

LOUISVILLE, Ky. — Jimmy Wilson, pilot of the Chicago Cubs, is so elated over the progress of his veteran pitching staff that he already has picked Claude Passeau to hurl the major league opener against Pittsburgh April 21 with Bill Lee down for the second game and Hi Bithorn for the third.

Today the Cubs tangle with Louisville of the American association.

MASTERSON CAUTIOUS
By The Associated Press

NORFOLK, VA. — Somebody wanted to know how Walter Masterson, former hurler for the Washington Senators, pitched to Ted Williams, the ex-batting star of the Boston Red Sox.

"I wound up," Masterson replied, "threw and then ducked behind the mound." Masterson is a chief specialist at the Norfolk Naval Training Station.

CHARLEY GEHRINGER NOW NAVY RECRUITER

17 Years in Detroit Uniform, Now in Blue.

By International News Service

CHICAGO — Lieut. Charley Gehringer, now a student in the Naval Pre-Flight school, wore a Detroit uniform for 17 full seasons. The only other Tiger to wear one longer was the great Ty Cobb.

Gehringer, baseball's "Silent Man," was a .300 hitter for 13 seasons. His high year at the plate was in 1937, when his .371 led the circuit. He also was named the league's most valuable player that season.

In six All-Star games he hit .500. Gehringer admits his playing days are over, but he wants to remain in baseball as a coach or manager.

George ("Birdie") Tebbetts of the Detroit club rates an assist on the "play" which sent Gehringer into the Navy. The talkative Tiger catcher, now in an army uniform, was asked months ago if he would like to sign up for recruiting duty with the army or navy in Detroit. He wrote to officials in Washington that if the armed forces wanted someone to increase enlistments and build good will for the Navy in Detroit and Michigan there was only one choice—Charley Gehringer.

Snatches of Sports

By HUGH FULLERTON JR.
Associated Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK, April 10—The other day, Al Del Greco, the Hackensack, N. J., sports scribe, came up with the suggestion that golf clubs suffering from the shortage of professionals might do worse than to hire some of the better feminine golfers to take their places. There's no kidding about that shortage, either, though eventually the supply of golf courses may run short, too.

* * *

Well, Why Not?—About a half dozen top-flight women golfers have turned pro—Helen Hicks, Patty Berg and Betty Hicks Newell for example—and Joe Dey, the U. S. Golf association secretary, figures that any gal who can qualify for the women's championship is a good enough golfer for the job ... "They're really good," he says. "And women seem to take more lessons and show the effects of instruction more than the men."

* * *

No Shortage—
Twenty-six thousand fans at Jamaica,
Twenty-six thousand to see the nags run.
Tires and trains and shoes all are rationed.
But still the folks got there and bet a mill-run.

One-Minute Sports Page—The Canadian censor now has passed the news that Flight Sergt. Sigurd Hannes of the Royal Norwegian air force—you remember "Sigurd of Little Norway" who turned in some remarkable ski jumping feats a year or so ago — has been killed in action on a sweep over France.

* * *

Service Dept.—Chief rival for the crack Norfolk naval training station baseball team will be the nearby naval air station club, including such guys as Hugh Casey, Peewee Reese, Eddie Shokes, Hubby Walker, Murray Franklin, Crash Davis and Player-coach Homer Peel. Pfc. American Wopcliesjes of the Marines, former eastern intercollegiate 175-pound boxing champion from Syracuse, spent his spare time on Guadalcanal collecting butterflies. He has a collection of 200 rare specimens.

CHAMPION EATER
By The Associated Press

NEW YORK — Ball players are always talking about their steaks and "big eaters." Many claim that Shanty Hogan, the Giants' big receiver was the king of plate cleaners but a restaurant man here, who has seen them all, says big Jim Weaver, former Yankee pitcher, was the champion.

The picture [illegible] the story of a fortune-[illegible] Miss (Mary Martin) who [illegible] a resort island in the [illegible] on board a luxury [illegible] and pretends to be the [illegible] of a millionaire.

[illegible] her idea that it's a lot [illegible] to land a goldfish by using [illegible] own gold as bait. But [illegible] gold doesn't last too [illegible] Dick Powell and Eddie Bracken, a couple of happy-go-lucky beach boys, and her friend, Betty Hutton help her in her campaign to win millionaire Rudy Vallee. By the time Vallee is safely on the hook, however, Mary is head over heals in love with Powell, and vice versa.

Filmed in Technicolor, "Happy Go Lucky" has five stars who sing, dance, and make merry to the tune of five hit songs. "Happy Go Lucky," "Let's Get Lost," "Murder He Says," "The Fuddy Duddy Watchmaker" and "Sing a Tropical Song."

Coming Thursday through Saturday is "In Which We Serve," written, directed and produced by Noel Coward, who is also the leading player.

Telling the life history of the H. M. S. Torrin, a destroyer of the Royal Navy from the time she is launched until she sinks in the Mediterranean off Crete, the film also tells the story of the men who serve on her. In a series of flashbacks it shows the homes from which they came, their wives, sweethearts and children, and the happy moments they lived with them ashore.

It shows the men in their homes, when the dive bombers swoop down upon the decks of the Torrin and when they jump themselves into the sea of oil after their ship is fatally wounded.

The scenes when the Torrin's guns blaze skyward against the enemies' bombs, when they shoot out against a convoy on the distant horizon are all done with realism. Just as moving and real are the home scenes, the emotional episodes in which Captain Kinross addresses his men in which he bids them goodbye after the ship is lost.

THE INVADER CONDESCENDS to mingle with the "conquered" in this scene from "The Moon is Down" which is playing at the Ohio theater now through Thursday. Peter Van Eyck plays the Nazi invader, and the young Norwegian couple is portrayed by Dorris Bowdon and William Post.

Ohio Shows War Picture

"The Moon Is Down," Based on Novel by Steinbeck, To Show Through Thursday.

The film version of "The Moon Is Down," John Steinbeck's great novel, is now playing through Thursday at the Ohio theater. The cast includes Sir Cedric Hardwicke, Henry Travers, Lee J. Cobb, Dorris Bowdon and Margaret Wycherly.

The story is about the Nazi invasion of a peaceful Norwegian town. The bitter destiny of the defeated overwhelms the people as the sudden appearance of the German troops takes them unaware. But freedom is a precious heritage and therein lies the story that a people's hopes, strength and spirit, even under the heel of the conqueror, will never be crushed.

One scene shows the trial of a Norwegian patriot by a Nazi colonel, played by Sir Cedric Hardwicke. Mayor Orden, portrayed by Henry Travers, sympathizes with the patriot, who has killed a Nazi soldier, but is powerless to help him.

Another scene shows Molly Morden, enacted by Dorris Bowdon, who is determined to avenge the death of her husband at the hands of the invaders. When a lonely despondent Nazi lieutenant calls on her, she reaches for a pair of scissors, saying: "Soon there will be one less of this horrible horde."

Coming Friday for a seven-day engagement is "Silver Skates" with a cast supporting Patricia Morrison, Brita, the English-born skating star, and Kenny Baker. It also includes Frick and Frack, Irene Dare and many other skating stars, and the picture is filled with songs by Bacon, music, pretty girls, and lavishly staged ice numbers.

Grable Film At Marion

"Springtime in the Rockies" Te Be Shown Through Monday on Double Bill.

At the Marion theater, starting at the midnight show Saturday, is the Technicolor musical, "Springtime in the Rockies," starring Betty Grable and John Payne with Carmen Miranda and Cesar Romero, Harry James and His Music Makers. It will play through Monday.

There is fun when Grable, Payne, Carmen and Romero get their romantic signals mixed. Harry James and His Music Makers set to melody the splendor of Canada's Lake Louise, which serves for the most part as the film's locale.

Along with "Springtime in the Rockies" is "Sin Town," starring Constance Bennett and Brod Crawford. It is based on the intrigue and lawlessness of an oil boom community.

Coming Tuesday and Wednesday is "Dr. Renault's Secret," starring J. Carrol Naish, John Sheppard and Lynne Roberts and "Life Begins at Eight-Thirty," featuring Monty Woolley and Ida Lupino.

"Dr. Renault's Secret" concerns the adventures of an American doctor, who goes to Paris to collaborate with an eccentric French scientist, who specializes in tracing the ancestry of man.

In "Wrecking Crew," coming Thursday through Saturday, Richard Arlen and Chester Morris are pitted against each other in a contest for Jean Parker, and for the best wrecking record on a big job.

"Lost Canyon," starring William Boyd and Andy Clyde in another Hopalong Cassidy film, also plays Thursday through Saturday. This time Hopalong sets out to prove the innocence of a friend who has been accused of a bank robbery.

Bogart and Astor Starred in Film Coming to State

Coming Sunday and Monday to the State theater is "Across the Pacific," starring Humphrey Bogart and Mary Astor. The time is pre-Pearl Harbor. Bogart heads for the Orient and the Chinese Army. He learns of a secret hideout of Japanese agents plotting destruction of the locks of the Panama Canal.

"Miss Polly," starring Zasu Pitts and Slim Summerville is also playing Sunday and Monday.

Tuesday and Wednesday Bob Steele and Tom Tyler come in "Westward Ho," along with Lupe Velez and Leon Errol in "Mexican Spitfire Sees a Ghost."

Joe E. Brown is coming Thursday through Saturday in "Shut My Big Mouth." "Thundering Hoofs" starring Tim Holt will be on the same bill.

CASH or BONDS

For late model ('40 or '41) Cars — all makes.

Are you hanging onto a car that you are using only occasionally, thinking you'll trade it in when the war is won?

Better not, because cars not used regularly are likely to DETERIORATE in value. They will be WORTH LESS in a year from now than RIGHT NOW!

Yet if you sell that car, You'll HAVE THE CASH for a future down payment. Or take War Bonds and let them GROW.

Meanwhile your car will go to an ESSENTIAL WAR WORKER who will really USE it—really make it give for Victory.

Better see us now. Call, phone or write for more information.

War Bond Purchased by Eagles Auxiliary

Plans were made for a benefit party May 3 at a meeting of the Women's auxiliary to Buckeye Aerie No. 537, F. O. Eagles, Thursday night. Mrs. Audrey Lloyd and Mrs. Flora Belle Welch were named a committee on arrangements. It was voted to purchase $400 in war bonds and to contribute $5 for candy for the canteen for service men. Mrs. Pauline Irvin received the attendance award.

Entertainment was in the form of a "fun olympic" with Mrs. Alletis Wharton and Mrs. Pauline Irvin in charge. STOCKS REGAIN SOME LOSSES

But Many Leaders Remain in Minus Column in Today's Trading.

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, April 10 — The stock market showed a picture of its equilibrium today, with occasional bids for selected rails and industrials appearing, but many leaders continued in the minus column.

Notwithstanding the Friday tumble, which resulted in the liquidation of assorted accounts in the speculative category, it was not overlooked. The Associated Press 60-stock average still was about 15 points above the bottom of a year ago while the 30-industrial index retained around 70 points of its upswing.

Top quotations failed to hold today in most cases near the close and losses were widespread.

SLOW MARKETING OF HOGS EXPLAINED

Large Death Losses and Black Market Chief Causes.

By The Associated Press

CHICAGO, April 10—Curtailed marketing of beef and hogs in recent weeks was due in part at least to unusually large death losses, the holding back of sows and gilts for breeding purposes and diversion of supplies to black markets, the department of agriculture reported today.

Losses from deaths and withholding for breeding were factors in the hog decline, while black market operations were believed to apply mostly to cattle in the department's monthly report on livestock. It said the exact amount of diversion to black markets was difficult to determine but it was assumed to be "fairly large."

The report said inspected slaughter of cattle during January and February was 6 per cent lower than a year ago, while calf slaughter declined 20 per cent. Hog slaughter for the five months from October to February of the present marketing year was only 7 per cent greater than a year ago, while the 1942 spring pig crop was 24 per cent greater than in 1941.

With the number of hogs on farms Jan. 1 totaling 13,000,000 more than a year earlier, inspected slaughter in the remainder of the marketing year was expected to continue larger than in the same months a year ago. The report said the January to September slaughter in most years has been a fairly consistent percentage of the number of animals on farms as of Jan. 1.

Assuming this relationship to be around average in 1943, inspected slaughter for the January to September period should be around 13,000,000 head. Effective regulation of marketings and slaughter under the meat control program should tend to limit non-inspected slaughter, the report said, and this would make a greater than usual proportion of the total hog supply available for slaughter in inspected plants.

Long Distance Buying Features Wool Market

By The Associated Press

BOSTON, April 10—The Commercial Bulletin said of the wool market today:

"Trading in wool is broadly active, although largely in supplies at long distance, in lieu of spot business that is limited by extremely small supply. Dealers and manufacturers are taking advantage of the existing free marketing period to get a big volume of far western wools under cover, although paying extreme prices to do so.

"Mills are understood to be taking over wools contracted on the sheep's back, for future delivery, in broad volume. Dealers have been purchasing the unshorn clips in a movement that has expanded by leaps and bounds.

"Some growers, it is indicated here, are laboring under the erroneous impression that they will have the option of private sale after the government take-over, which is forecast to become effective April 24. The CCC has advised dealers that an order designating that agency as sole buyer of the domestic clip when the take-over becomes effective is soon to be issued."

The paper published the following unchanged Ohio quotations:

Domestic fleeces—Delaine unwashed 49-50; ½ blood combing 50-51; ¾ blood combing 53-54; ¼ blood combing 52-54.

SLOW TIME CALLED BOON TO FARMERS

Change Helps Boost Production, Leaders Declare.

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O., April 10—Ohio's shift to "slow" time is proving beneficial to farmers seeking to increase food production, President Perry L. Green of the Ohio Farm Bureau Federation reported today.

"Maximum production of food on the farms," he said, "is considerably enhanced by the time change. I do not believe that any business or government leader who understands the farmers' difficulties in relation to fast time will further oppose the recent action of our state legislature."

Enactment of legislation changing Ohio from war time to hour-slower time raised a storm of protest from urban centers and only Columbus and Dayton, among larger cities, turned back their clocks.

Green explained "fast" time hampered farmers because "they couldn't get into their fields until late in the forenoon because of darkness or dew and workers had to halt field operations to conform with numerous other activities in the area important to agricultural pursuits."

Murray D. Lincoln, Farm Bureau executive secretary, asserted "the war will be won on the food that American farmers raise this summer," and urged agriculturalists to seek solution of their problems in neighborhood groups under a self-help program recently outlined by seven farm organizations and service agencies.

John Sims, urged farmers to use proper grade of fertilizer for their soil and crops to meet 1943 food production quotas.

Funds resulting from an increase in taxes on distilled spirits in Chile enacted last October will be used to erect a modern building for the University of Chile at Santiago.

WHISKY RATIONING HELPS

By The United Press

ROANOKE, N. C.—Roanoke can attribute its decreasing jail population to whisky rationing and jobs offered by war industry. City Jailer J. C. James said, "We had only 70 guests for dinner the other day. Rationing of whisky by the ABC board has reduced the number of 'Monday morning' drunks appreciably." According to James, jail's population is 180 and for years the jail capacity has run around that figure.

Pitfalls of Love

By ADELE GARRISON

I TENSED to uneasy attention at the operator's message.

"Are you sure you have the name right?" I asked. "Did you say Dr. Meredith?"

"That is right," she said.

"Put him on the wire, please," I said, and the next instant Hal Meredith's voice came over the wire.

"Madge?" he said eagerly. "This is Hal. Tell me, please, is Katharine with you?"

I was silent for almost a second. What ill wind had brought him here now, when Katharine's emotional turmoil over Jack had almost exhausted her?

Katharine had not spoken of Meredith for months, and I had evolved my long-held theory that Hal, her first sweetheart, by his long, unselfish devotion in contrast with Jack's neglect had won the love her husband apparently had thrown away.

Puzzled About Katharine

But with the explanation afforded by the treachery of Ruth Hayes and with knowledge of Jack's peril, Katharine apparently had forgotten that there ever had been another man in her life. How would Hal Meredith's return now affect her? Would she want to see him, or would she want me to send him away?

"Are you still there, Madge?" Hal asked, hurt wonder in his voice. "Didn't you hear me, or are you wondering how to answer me? But first let me tell you that I know Katharine is staying with you, even if not there right now. I have been out to the farm, thinking to find her there, and Lillian told me she was here with you."

"Yes, she is here," I said, "but I don't know whether she ought to see you. She is asleep now, after a very trying day."

"Then I won't disturb her," he said, with chivalrous tenderness. "But—is she in the same room with you?"

"No, I am in the living room of the suite, and she is asleep in the bedroom."

Something Strange

"Then may I come up to see you a few minutes?" he pleaded. "I simply must talk to you. It is very important. I am anxious to Katharine to [illegible] are more and something [illegible] upon something strange [illegible] with her and you must assist."

Something in his voice puzzled me, as if something [illegible] come to his knowledge [illegible] threatened Katharine, and I answered him quickly.

"Will you come up in ten minutes exactly?" I asked. "I will be waiting for you."

[illegible] relief in his voice, "and thank you."

Sorely as she needed sleep I felt that I must waken Katharine tell her that Hal was downstairs, and let her decide what she wished to do.

Katharine's Dream

In the bedroom I found her tossing restlessly, and as I bent over her she threw out a hand and said terrorly: "No, Hal, I can't. I—I—sometimes wish I could, but I can't."

She was dreaming of him! I drew back in puzzled consternation. Had I been wrong, after all? Was her recent apparent devotion to Jack rooted only in duty and remorse instead of love? Or did she truly love her husband, and was this dream of Hal only the subconscious utterance of pity?

Whichever it was, I could not delay her wakening. I put my fingers on her wrist, and spoke softly when she opened her eyes and stared somewhat wildly up at me.

"I am sorry to waken you, dear girl," I said, "but it is necessary."

"I am glad you did," she said. "I was having a troublesome dream."

"What has happened?" she asked, now fully wakened. "I know you wouldn't have wakened me but for something important."

"I have a message for you," I said.

Her face was suddenly radiant. "From Jack?" she asked.

Pennsylvania Reports Surplus of Gasoline

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, April 9—Rep. Weiss (D-Pa.) said today he had been informed gasoline stocks in western Pennsylvania were greater than they were a year ago, and oil refineries in the area would have to shut down over the weekend unless they can ship their surplus gasoline from filled storage tanks.

Weiss said he expected to introduce a resolution in the house today for an investigation of the western Pennsylvania gasoline situation.

Weiss issued a statement criticizing Petroleum Administrator Ickes for refusing to remove 25 western Pennsylvania counties from the seaboard rationing area and place them in district 2, where rationing coupons are good for four gallons each.

Used in connection with a transformer to reduce the voltage of a house current, a thermostat has been designed to control the warmth of electric blankets at night regardless of room temperature changes.

YOUR HEALTH

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

Fluorine in Water

SOME TIME ago it was found that the teeth of persons living in certain districts in the Rocky Mountain area had a peculiar mottling of the enamel with the exposure of chalky patches and discolorations ranging from yellow to dark brown. Further investigation showed that the water of these regions had an unusually high content of a chemical known as fluorine and it was concluded that the excess of fluorine was the cause of the mottled enamel of these teeth.

Some years later an investigating dentist announced that people who lived in these areas and similar areas (that is to say mountainous and granite-soiled areas) were remarkable in that almost 100 per cent of them were entirely free from dental caries, or tooth decay. They had the very finest of white teeth. Searching for the cause of this, he came to the conclusion that it was due to fluorine in the water.

These contradictory investigations are in reality not quite so paradoxical as they may appear on the surface. Re-investigating the mottled enamel, it was found that mottled enamel occurs almost entirely in children and young adults and that only those children born in the community or who had lived there from early infancy developed the condition. People who had moved into the community after the age when their teeth had calcified not only did not develop mottled enamel, but were also free from dental caries.

Fluorine is present in any water only in trace amounts. Drinking water which is obtained from cold springs invariably contains little or no fluorine, but drinking water which is obtained from warm springs and deep springs is found to have appreciable amounts.

The evidence points to the suggestion that trace amounts of fluorine in the diet or drinking water tend to prevent dental decay. As a matter of fact, the mottled enamel is not so very serious as it has been found that these mottled teeth resist dental caries very markedly.

One source of fluorine in the diet is milk. Different samples of milk were found to contain from 0.05 to 0.25 parts of fluorine per million. Adding fluorine to the feed of cattle did not appreciably increase the amount of fluroine in the milk, so there seems to be no danger of obtaining milk which has too high a fluorine content. A recent investigator states: "Dental caries in city school children varies inversely with the fluorine content of cows' milk."

We spoke yesterday of the role of uncleanliness and decaying particles of food in dental caries.

The strength of the teeth to resist is undoubtedly another factor in its occurrence or lack of occurrence, and part of this strength seems to be due to the amount of fluorine and vitamin D in the diet of children.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

M. T.—Why does an excess of fruit cause cystitis? What kidney trouble would affect the eyes so as to make everything look blurry when one tries to read?

Answer: An excess of fruit does not cause cystitis. Chronic kidney change produces trouble in the retina of the eye, which results in blurry vision.

A. S.—A young man in his twenties who is very nervous and high-strung would like to know if this could be caused by some gland, such as the thyroid. Can one have trouble with the thyroid gland without having a goiter?

Answer: Yes, to both questions.

The Stars Say—

For Sunday, April 11

A fairly active and interesting day, in which the affairs of the church, clergy, communities and public welfare are under pressure of success and gratifying advancement.

Those whose birthday it is may be prepared for a moderately active and successful year with a stability and endurance to various interests that may bring satisfaction and public recognition. This gratification should not be jeopardized by petty bickerings or disputes, or personal emotions.

A child born on this day may be talented, resourceful and persevering although emotional and fond of having its own way.

* * *

For Monday, April 12

Monday's astrological forecast is for an eventful and lively day, in which the social, domestic or sentimental factors are to the fore although business will not be entirely neglected. The financial outlook is good, and may be a force for enhancing the social or romantic status.

Those whose birthday it is may look for a fairly prosperous and happy year in which the emphasis may be placed on the social, domestic or romantic relations. In new ventures and investments or other financial transactions the outlook is favorable, but keep business affairs separate from personal, as riders and superiors are not any too complacent about propositions.

A child born on this day may be ambitious, capable, generous and congenial, fond of social and romantic pleasure, although with due reserves and prudence, perhaps inspiring opposition from elders.

Sugar Battle Won by OPA Spokesman

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, April 10 — Thanks partly to the persistence of the housewives' official spokesman, home canners will get extra sugar from OPA again this year without penalties.

The spokesman, pretty Mrs. Philip Crowlie of Huron, S. D., won her first major victory Thursday when OPA discarded a proposal to require applicants for canning sugar to surrender 8 to 12 points of their canned goods ration coupons for every extra pound of sugar.

Instead, canning sugar will be doled out by local ration boards on request, as was done last year.
